

March 23, 2012

To Whom It May Concern:

I recommend the Black Jew Dialogues for all university campuses. As the Program Coordinator of the Office of Multicultural Affairs at Wichita State University, I have seen various speakers, presentations, and performances. However, The Black Jew Dialogues, by far, was one of the best I have seen. On November 10, 2011, The Black Jew Dialogues graced the stage at Wichita State University for the Office of Multicultural Affairs' Annual Diversity Week. They were our closing performance for our week, and they ended it with a bang!

This duo did a marvelous job of incorporating an educational piece while keeping the audience's attention with their extremely funny skits. The topics addressed were difficult subjects. However, Ron and Larry were able to address these issues in a non-hostile or abrasive manner. I was highly impressed with the rich history and background of African Americans and Jews in the skits, and the correlation between the two groups. It is a very thought provoking show, and even persuasive in the fact that it encourages unity and cultural understanding. I can honestly say students left the performance talking highly about The Black Jew Dialogues.

I am more than confident that any university would be more than pleased with this riveting, entertaining, and educational performance. You will not be disappointed!

Sincerely,

Natalie Toney
Program Coordinator, Office of Multicultural Affairs
Wichita State University